

EARTHMOVING: Hartwigs takes on CASE products

Thursday, 1 March 2007

AUSTRALIAN regional transport dealership Hartwigs has recently been appointed the new CASE dealer in the Wagga Wagga, Albury and Shepparton regions to cater for the needs of the booming construction industry in southern New South Wales and northern Victoria.

With strong growth in the residential market in Wagga Wagga, Albury and Griffith, and with construction activity continuing along the Hume Highway bypass in Albury, director Tim Hartwig expects Hartwigs' expansion into construction equipment to be met with keen interest.

Hartwigs has been a family run business for the past four generations, and will now supply the full range of CASE equipment, from mini excavators and skid steers to high-powered excavators and wheel loaders.

The company will also carry a full range of spare parts.

"We're now well placed to meet the needs of a range of industries from construction to agriculture and trucks," Hartwig said.

"Across our three dealerships, we have a team of 14 sales staff and we also offer 24-hour service across our dealer network ensuring operators get back on the job fast should they have a breakdown."

CASE marketing manger Wayne Munce said the appointment would further strengthen the CASE network of dealers across Australia.

"As a company, our aim is to provide the construction industry with not just the equipment they need, but the back-up service to keep their operations running efficiently and productively," he said.

"We're confident that Hartwigs' level of professionalism and experience will meet the needs of our growing customer base in these key areas."
